PEACE PROPOSAL
OFFICIALLY.

HUN PRESS ARROGANT

Actual Decision Is Watched For With Interest by the Neutral Nations, Who Report a Crisis in German Politics.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Jan. 8.—A reply from the central powers to the British war aims made by Premier Lloyd George Saturday is awaited here with the greatest interest. It is believed that Germany and her allies cannot decide to reply in some form and to make the reply more straightforward and defined than any previous statement of their aims.

But if the German papers correctly mirror the situation there, the action which the Bolsheviks have made of Germany's attitude toward the principle of no annexation has thrown Germany into political turmoil.

Advices from the capitals of neutral countries bordering on Germany show that the opinion prevalent there is that one of the most severe national crises in the history of Germany is developing as a result of the difference of view between the militarist and non-militarist leaders regarding government's attitude toward Russia.

Threatened Resignations.
It is reported generally that General Von Ludendorff as leader of the militarist group, actually has gone so far as to threaten the resignation of himself and Field Marshal Von Hindenburg if further countenance is advised by any of the type of Dr.
Kuehnemann and Count Czernin, the German and Austrian foreign ministers.

At the same time the view of Von Kuehnemann and Czernin failed to satisfy the German socialists, who regard their "middle of the road" policy as risky and who have determined the split of the Reichstag resolution must be followed sincerely and without qualification or reserve.

Chasm Widens.
Natural observers declare the gap between the German parties suddenly has become a chasm so wide that there is little hope of bringing it and the developments of an internal crisis of serious proportion seems inevitable.

Press Reports.
Amsterdam, Jan. 8.—Discussing the statement of war aims made Friday by Premier Lloyd George, the Rhenische Westfaelische Zeitung of Essen says that Lloyd George's peace aims are demanding a change of German policy toward Russia, Arabia, Serbia and Palestine for England, and speak of the war indemnity we will have to pay, the answer in view of the actual war situation is too much.

Commercial Talk.
The newspapers think, however, that the commercial tone in which Lloyd George spoke is not nothing and add: "We become reasonable. Until then the U-boat and Hindenburg sword will help."

Terms for Conquered.
The Frankfurt Zeitung says:
"Only a defeated Germany could think of negotiating on the terms laid down by Lloyd George. It is a new war and a way to terminate the speech and a way to terminate the war will either have begun in England and other entente countries is going enough to replace Lloyd George by Clemenceau and Barron, who are of such speeches and draw consequences. How far we are from that time it is hard to say."

Russia's Blank.
London, Jan. 8.—There is no indication thus far of the manner in which Lloyd George's definition of war aims has been received in Russia or even whether his speech has been published there. The Bolsheviks are said to be prepared to attack Great Britain and her allies.

U. S. CONTROL FAILS TO HASTEN BUILDING

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 8.—Although the purpose of the government in commending ship construction was to expedite the work, it actually has failed to speed it up, according to William L. Ferris, president of the Newport News shipbuilding company testified today before the senate commerce committee in testimony.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—It was announced by officers of the National Association of Shoe Dealers that no attempt would be made by that organization to follow the English example and regulate the height of women's shoes, as was hinted yesterday. It was also announced the retail dealers admit no responsibility of the high prices which prevail, but rather blame the manufacturers and style creators.

Russian People Are Now Starving; Rebel Leaders Give Food To Neutral Nations

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Jan. 8.—The Bolshevik government, the Times says it understands, is offering to Norway the wheat stored on the Norman coast and shipped from America for use in retrograde. It says that inasmuch as the offer is made at a time when Petrograd and Finland are both said to be on the verge of starvation and the Fins are appealing to Sweden, United States and Great Britain to send wheat, it would seem to have been made at the instigation of Germany, who wishes to pose as a friend of Norway.

"Germany is offering wheat to Holland and the Scandinavian countries," it is said, although the only supply available for exportation is that of Belgium and the food of prisoners."

of ships loaded with supplies for the

CABINET RESIGNED; AUSTRALIAN CRISIS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Jan. 8.—The Australian Cabinet, headed by Wm. Morris Hughes, has resigned, according to a Reuters dispatch from Melbourne.
Frank G. Tiedor, labor leader, has been summoned to form a new minister. Since the defeat of the government's conscription bill, in Australia, it has been reported that Premier Hughes would resign.
On the defeat of the conscription bill, in November, 1915, Hughes resigned and the resignation of his cabinet. A new cabinet was formed with Hughes as premier. Last fall he again brought up a conscription bill, and in the election shortly before Christmas, he was defeated by a majority greater than in 1916.
Frank G. Tiedor was minister of trade and customs, in the Fisher cabinet, which resigned in the spring of 1910.

SUPERVISORS WILL VISIT COUNTY FARM

Accept Invitation of Supt. Cullen For Thursday—Supt. of Highways Moore Reads His Annual Report of Work.

Supervisors of the county met at the court house this afternoon in their regular January meeting. Upon motion of Supervisor Paul, the invitation of Archie Cullen, superintendent of the county poor farm and insane asylum, to visit the farm on Thursday was accepted. It is an annual custom for the county board to visit and inspect the farm and to note the condition of the buildings.
A communication from F. F. Liver-more, one of the board of trustees, was read. It pertained to the added expense being incurred by some spectacular improvements recommended by the building committee. A new pump was referred to as being very costly to operate, as was also the voltage of electricity which has been raised from 110 volts to 220, causing a marked increase in rates. These two items alone cost the county $109 per month more than formerly. Mr.
Livermore recommended their investigation. The matter was postponed until the board visits the farm Thursday.

Superintendent of Highways Chas.
Moore read his ninth annual report of the construction of county roads.
The report was detailed and showed that much good work has been accomplished the past year in the matter of improving the highways. Mr. Moore gave the figures of the amount paid by the county for building new highways as being $108,812.28, for repairs reconstruction $28,506.02 and for maintenance $3,488.52. The report was received and placed on file.

MATT MAY PROMOTE RED CROSS BOUT

Matt Hinkel, the well-known Cleveland fight promoter, has started the sporting world by offering to underwrite a Willard-Fulton Red Cross benefit bout for one million dollars, providing the government will permit the exhibition of moving pictures of the affair. Hinkel, who is a past master in putting on successful fight shows, says that he knows he can manage the thing in such a way as to take in a great fund for Red Cross.

COLD WAVE FORCES COAL SHORTAGE IN THE WINDY CITY

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The county fuel administrator this afternoon issued an appeal in which, referring to the snow blockade, he said nothing but the united effort of the entire man power of the city could relieve the situation enough to avert the worst fuel famine in years.
Mayor Thompson called a meeting of the business men. Only 10 per cent of coal ordered by householders was moved, and hundreds of tons of wagons were reported stuck in the drifts. The coal administration said water was freezing in pipes everywhere for lack of heat.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, Jan. 8.—The question of extending the night work prohibition to transportation establishments will be considered in a hearing before the state industrial commission January 25. Recently reports have been received stating some of the electric lines plan on using women conductors nights and the effect of such employment will be considered by the commission.
The question of licensing private employment agencies at Green Bay will be considered by the commission January 17. O'Donnell and Underwood of Green Bay have asked for the extension of the time the public employment agency is being operated by the woman's club of that city.

WHAT TERMS HUNS WILL BE GRANTED

PRESIDENT WILSON SETS FORTH FOURTEEN CONDITIONS CEN- TRAL POWERS MUST AD- HERE TO TO GAIN PEACE.

GIVE PLAIN STATEMENT

Address Before Joint Session of Congress Is Filled With Good, Sound Common Sense That Will Bear Fruit.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 8.—President Wilson today addressing congress delivered a restatement of war aims in agreement with the recent declaration by the British premier, David Lloyd George. The president presented a brief but powerful statement of the purpose of American observation of the French organizations and preventing the French seeing in the direction of Altkirch. On the afternoon of January 7, the president delivered an address before congress, three companies of French Chasseurs—Blue Devils, attacked the Schonholz, completely wiping out the salient in a fierce fight last night. The French had been attacking cavalry counter attacked but failing, leaving in all 120 prisoners, including six officers, in the hands of the Blue Devils. Complete German infantry divisions of the German infantry, their effort to retain a position which they know to be of extreme value, were estimated at the following 600 men.

The following day a French general presented medals on the blue tunic of two adjutants and a corporal for exceptional valor. Though there were no such medals in the district, the general sent a fast automobile to the district, where possible, and the little presentation ceremony in an Alsation village as a happy aftermath to a victory that took from the Germans priceless observation posts.
The French command next decided that the Germans were seeing too much north to the Chemin des Dames.
Consequently following a brief and fierce struggle, four companies of polus lined the attack against the enemy lines forming a salient between the small river Mittle and the route to the German held village of Juncourt.
Here the enemy held valuable observation posts overlooking Juncourt and ground east of the Mittle.

Under low lying clouds and in a "pea-soup fog," the former prevented an easy work and the latter preventing enemy observation of the advance, the French infantrymen, in less than an hour, swept over position on a front of 1,000 yards and penetrated to a depth of over half a mile. They wiped out the salient, took all the observatories and captured 475 prisoners—a number almost equal to the entire attacking force. Six German officers and 45 under-officers fell into the net.

The third and most important French action of November was in the region where constant hellish fighting has been the daily routine, Hill 344, on the right bank of the Meuse, north of Verdun. Here a drum-like attack of the French on November 10, 1916, almost daily since the latter part of August, have had small place in the communique because of the routine nature of the enemy's positions permitted him to make constant infantry "raids" into the French lines on the northern flank of Hill 344 and to disturb French organization which he could not in the rear.

French strategy in eliminating the enemy's advantageous positions in the region of Hill 344 has probably never been employed before in war. The peculiar advantage of the conditions peculiar to the region, French guns of many calibers at 6:30 Sunday morning, Nov. 25, concentrated their deluge of steel on a three mile half mile front opposite 344. The thunder of this artillery preparation though violent was unnoted amidst the constant medley of air vibrations which had become a habit in German ears about three months. Just four hours after the beginning of the concentration of fire, at 10:30 a. m., the French guns lengthened their range and barraged the German rear while the German guns over the top. The surprise was complete. Victory was won in several minutes. The French infantrymen in the first waves left taking of prisoners to troops following. The last unit to follow behind. The latter boarded 800 dazed Germans to the rear. Enemy losses in dead and wounded were heaviest. French losses, on account of the surprise light. The advantageous positions which it has taken the enemy over eight weeks to gain were wiped out in not much more than eight minutes.

Ready to Fight.
For such arrangement and covenants," said the president in conclusion, "we are willing to fight and continue to fight until they are achieve but only because we have the right to prevail and because a just and stable peace is a program he said, removed chief provocations for war." The moral climax of this human minating and ending his address, "and they (the people of the United States are ready to put their own strength, their highest purpose, their very integrity and devotion to the test."

Approve Speech.
Instant and enthusiastic praise for the address was given cheerfully and loudly by congressmen and the congress. Leaders of congress and expressed an expression of approval with few reservations. It was a general opinion that the president's address has possibility of hastening peace and inaugurating the Russian negotiations while at the same time concretely giving peace terms and endorsing Lloyd George's statements.

Stone for Peace.
Chairman Stone of the senate foreign relations committee, declared he was in full agreement with the president while other senators referred to the address as the best thing the president had ever done, and "his greatest papers."

Encourages Allies.
Chairman Flood of the house of foreign affairs committee, declared the address would carry encouragement to the allies and particularly encourage and hearten the Russians.
Representative Myer of New York, the only socialist in congress, declared it is a good message.

New York, Jan. 8.—The stock market initial response to the proposal in the President's address to congress today was a slump. Trading virtually stopped while the address was being printed, but as soon as the essential point in the address became known general selling aided by the short interests began. The market reacted one to four points, from highest quotation of the morning. Selling increased on the decline. Partial recovery came but at 1:30 only a small part of the setback was recovered.

One inspector dropped into a Madison butcher shop and found a crop of five and one-half ounces in a chicken weighing two pounds, added loss to the buyer of seventeen percent. Commissionaire will be glad to tion.

STRONGHOLDS OF THE HUNS ARE NOW BEING CAPTURED BY FRENCH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
With the French armies in the field, Jan. 8.—French troops are methodically taking away the German spy-glasses.

One by one, enemy observation posts and advantage positions have been carefully spotted by the French command and effectively eliminated.
Though French official communiques issued have registered merely local victories, they have had for the main objective that of snatching the binoculars from the Teuton eyes.

A brief artillery preparation, a shrill whistle in the first line trenches and the police have bounded "over the top" in actions of signal importance in Alsace, north of the Chemin des Dames and north of Verdun at Hill 344.
Nearly 1,400 prisoners and "products" of these local, strategical drives.

The first "spy-glass" seizure was that of the "Schonholz," powerfully fortified German salient jutting into the French lines. The French, by the double purpose of German observation of the French organizations and preventing the French seeing in the direction of Altkirch. On the afternoon of

HUN GENERAL ADMITS ENGLAND IS WINNING

blatt Rundschau of Berlin General Lieber says the balance of war is which has firmly in hand only the

But the more important overland routes from Cairo to the Persian writes, must be settled at the peace conference and everything depends whether it or Great Britain shall

German Offensive Is Not Feared by the Allied Nations, Says Secretary Baker

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 8.—The expected German offensive in the west, Secretary Baker's weekly war review today says, "possibly will be their greatest assault, but the British and French armies can be relied upon to withstand the shock."

Summarizing the situation on the eve of a possible great offensive, Secretary Baker confidently points out that through sixteen fierce battles and great sacrifices the British and French have steadily pushed ahead with methodical and cumulative gains.
The expected offensive, he points out, probably is being delayed for masses of munitions, guns and troops, and the Germans may be expected to "strain every fiber of their remaining strength."

On the Italian front, the secretary points out, French successes have turned the scale against the Austro-German invader, and the west bank of the Piave is being held firmly.
Hampered by heavy snowfalls, the invaders now are confronted with a handicap of maintaining his transport service, which neutralized the advantage of holding higher ground.

The period of adjustment has passed and it may now be expected "the French, British and Italians, fighting side by side, will be able to master the situation."

NEW HUN OFFICERS ARE NOT EFFICIENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
French Front, Jan. 8.—German prisoners are complaining of the inefficiency of their junior officers, who are, they say, often placed in command after only four weeks' training.
One prisoner told the Associated Press correspondent that the majority of the professional junior officers still in the front are the depot and instruction camps in the interior to retain the boys of the 1919 and 1920 classes now called for service. These vacancies in the ranks were filled by youths from the infantry, the cavalry and the merchants and manufacturers.

The number of officers also has been reduced. At the beginning of hostilities each company had four Lieutenants or second Lieutenants.
Early in the war the creation of new machine gun, trench mortar, gas and grenadier officers from the ranks had always reduced the number of officers attached to each company down to only three.

Owing to the frequent absence of officers on furlough or for special instruction course, there are only two officers, and sometimes one, on duty with a company, even when it is holding the front line trenches.

In recent battles on the French front the number of active officers is very small. Battalion commanders are nearly always commissioned officers, and the chiefs of sections are sergeant-major-Lieutenants, who bear the insignia of officers on their shoulder straps but wear no commissioned officers' collars and hold their rank only for the duration of the war. Since the end of 19

RAIL EMPLOYEES NOT GOVERNMENT WORKERS

EXEMPTION BOARD RECEIVES IN-STRUCTIONS NOT TO CLASSI-FY RAILROAD MEN AS GOVERNMENT
EMPLOYEES.

ORDER FROM CROWDER

Railroad Men Will Be Given Deferred Classifications only as Being Necessary to the Opera- tion of Roads.

That railroad men are not temporary employees on the grounds of the government is a fact which has been made evident by a communication which has been received by the local exemption board from Governor Philipp. The order of the provost marshal to the government states that railroad employees will be given deferred classification only on industrial claims, that is, that they are necessary to the adequate and effective operation of the railroad.

In the original instructions to the exemption board called for all government employees to be placed in the third class if it was proved that they were necessary to the work.

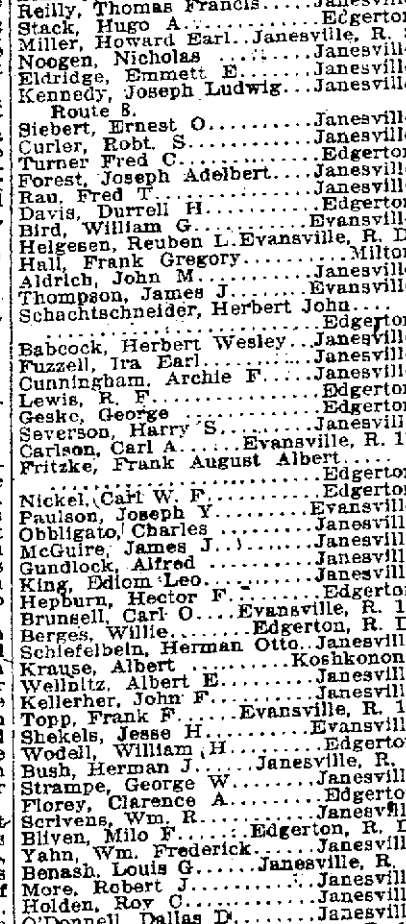

With the cancellation of the railroad exemption board by the government, many railroad men have been of the opinion that they would now be considered government employees and that the exemption board would be returned, but the order from the governor corrects this impression. It is not probable, how ever, than any railroad worker will be placed in the first class, but will be given temporary exemption for the time they are on the railroads at the present time need all the men they can get and it would not be wise to let any experienced man be drafted. It is suggested that the railroad employ a man to serve his country at home than in the military service.

RED SOX MAY EMPLOY FORMER LEAGUE HEAD

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, Jan. 8.—It is regarded in well informed baseball circles that Ed Barrow, whose resignation as president of the International league will be acted upon at the schedule meeting of the league Feb. 12, will be connected with the Red Sox in some capacity next summer.

It is a fact that Barrow was offered the presidency of the Red Sox some months ago, and that he took up the matter with Ban Johnson. Johnson and Barrow are friends of long standing and the American league head was pleased with the opportunity to have Barrow in the league. He advised Barrow to accept.

Barrow took the matter under advisement and finally came to the conclusion that he could accept, and that was where the matter has stood for some time. Harry Frazee, however, has been after Barrow ever since the latter split with the International league and it may be that he deal will be completed yet.

Frazee is a mighty busy man with interests other than baseball, and the latter business is something that absolutely will not advance under neglect. Barrow's long association with baseball, his clear insight into matters demanding action quickly and steadily give him an inside track over other applicants for the position. Frazee is sorely in need of someone in whom he can place confidence sufficient to turn over the entire executive end of the baseball club.

Whether Barrow would be manager of the club is a subject not yet discussed publicly. Barrow has had long experience as a baseball club manager, and at one time led a club in the American league—Detroit. He has had varying success with minor league clubs. Once he was at the helm at Indianapolis, and just before he ascended to the title of president in the International league he was manager of one of its clubs.

Jack Barry, it is certain, cannot devote a great deal of time to baseball next summer, although Frazee is said to be hopeful that things will so shape themselves as to give him Barry's services for a brief period every day in the early spring. He believes, he could make it fine if Barry would help just that much and aid in the selection of a new manager.

It is curious to note that while Sam Langford cared not at all to tackle Jim Jeffries some years ago at the time Jack Johnson was preparing to meet him he is more than willing to take a chance today with Jess Willard. And this in spite of the fact that Langford today is not at all the Langford of several years ago which he well knows. But at the time that Johnson, then Sam's bitter rival, was matched with Jeff, Sam said he didn't want "none of Mr. Jeffries' tricks. That man ain't human." All of which may go to show, since Langford may be regarded as a fair judge of fighting talent, that there is some difference between the once champion Jeffries and the heavyweight champion we have today.

One more twenty-round stronghold has adopted the ten-round system of boxing bouts. Owing to the smaller attendance at the bouts, due to the war and the consequent smaller purses the Australian promoters have turned down the bouts from twenty to ten rounds. According to Promoter Snowy Baker, the innovation has proved to be a success and will be continued even after the war. Baker says the spectators are much better pleased with the shorter bouts, as they make more action and less stalling.

Regardless of the measure of success attained by the Cincinnati club in 1918, the Reds will be sure of one large attendance at their home grounds for already more than 4,000 seats have been sold for the opening game of the season at Redland field. The opening game of the year is a big day in all major league cities, but in Cincinnati it is more than just a big day. The Reds and their opponents together with prominent citizens and various brass bands, parade through the city in automobiles, an impressive ceremony is held at the ball park and the largest crowd of the year always turns out. The advance sale of seats for every year's opener begins in the preceding fall, and as a rule at least 5,000 are sold before Christmas.

Three Months! And Arid, Swampy Island is Now a Bustling Shipyard

Above—Hog Island today with piles driven for fifty shipways. Below—Hog Island just three months ago.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8.—War, the master mesmerist, spread its palms over an arid waste of land lying in the harbor near here and presto!—a shipyard began to be.

Three months ago Hog Island was as barren an old island and as desolate and forbidding a place as one could find. The lower picture shows its swampy expanse with only a scraggy growth of brush and a lone wireless aerial as it looked just three months ago. The team and the men in the foreground are the heralds of the transportation which has taken place. They have just begun to break ground. Today that same island is a noisy, bustling, almost completed shipyard. On the heels of the horses seen in the lower picture came rail-load after rail-load of huge pilings and the big drivers followed.

An army of workmen was recruited from cities in the eastern and central states—laborers, engineers, shipbuilders—carpenters, mechanics—and all were rushed to Hog Island. The ninety days of work have made the top picture a photograph of Hog Island. Piles are down for fifty shipways. Soon as many keels will be laid for the standardized cargo vessels which are to be built by the emergency fleet corporation.

The work on the yards goes on day and night. In the photo may be seen the big are lights by which the night shifts labor. The change wrought by the army of workers is so remarkable as to be fantastic, said W. B. Ferguson of the emergency fleet corporation, who approved the two photos shown. "It is a striking example of the manner in which government mobilizes its resources."

Word was received late yesterday afternoon, from Madison, of the death of Dr. J. M. Evans. The message gave no other particulars, save that his death occurred about four o'clock, p. m., and that the family would accompany the remains to Evansville, this afternoon.

For many months past, Dr. Evans has been in very poor health. Last spring, there were times when his life hung in the balance, but during the summer months he seemed to rally, and was even able to walk from his home to town. In the fall, he suffered a relapse, and it was deemed advisable to take him to the hospital in Madison.

Dr. Evans was born in Evansville, where his home was made during his entire life time, and where friends and acquaintances of all ages, and in all walks of life, mourn the passing of a good man.

A more detailed account and notice of the funeral will be given later. This afternoon, at the city hall, occurred the Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Fair Association. It is hoped that a good attendance will be the order of the day. At this time it will be decided if a Fair will be held here, this year.

TRADING STAMP LAW EXPLAINED IN DETAIL

G. J. Weigle, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, Takes Up New Requirement and Gives Results Obtained.

In the following article, G. J. Weigle, the state dairy and food commissioner, takes up the new trading stamp law and explains it in detail.

The law, by its terms, took effect January 1, 1918. It has no retroactive operation. It in no wise affects the validity of trading stamps or coupons issued or delivered to customers before that date and does not impair the right of obligation of the merchant or person who has issued such stamps or coupons before that date, to redeem the same at any time they may be presented for redemption.

The law prohibits every person, firm or corporation within the state to "use, give, offer, issue, transfer, furnish or deliver" from and after January 1, 1918, "in connection with the sale of any goods, wares or merchandise" any trading stamp or the like, redeemable in merchandise or anything of value, except in cash.

The prohibition of the law applies to the issuance of the trading stamp or a similar device (except redeemable only in cash) "in connection with" the sale of goods, wares or merchandise, by a person, firm or corporation in this state who sells the goods, issuing such stamp therewith, who is made liable to the penalties prescribed by the statute.

Such liability cannot be avoided by such person, firm or corporation, having procured either the goods or the stamps from outside of the state.

Such liability cannot be avoided by making the stamps redeemable outside the state.

Bear Coupon Wrappers. Nor can such liability be avoided on the ground that the trading stamp or coupon was printed on the wrapper or enclosed inside the container of package goods. The merchant or other person selling such package goods must, to protect himself, place on the wrapper, or on the wrapper or coupon on the wrapper, or remove the same from the container before delivering the package to his customer.

The words "within this state" in the statute are a recognition of the limits of the state authority. The state cannot regulate or prohibit interstate commerce. Hence, the state does not apply to the issuance of stamps or the like in interstate transactions, as where a person in this state buys goods from a merchant or other person in another state, and ships them directly to the purchaser in this state. But the purchaser in this state may not lawfully issue trading stamps in connection with the resale of such goods so with the resale of them, unless such resale be in and of the entire original interstate commerce package-shipping case or carton-unopened and unbroken and in the identical condition in which the goods were shipped and delivered to interstate commerce.

No More "Soap Clubs." Any person or company who, as agent or consignee, outside this state, having received goods in interstate commerce, shall open the shipping package and remove the contents or any part thereof, and distribute or parcel out the same to another person or persons (i. e., soap clubs, etc., and issue or deliver any trading stamp or coupon in violation of the law.

While the law prohibits the issuing of trading stamps and the like commonly heretofore issued by the "dealer" or "dealer" to "issue any slip, ticket or check with the sale of any goods, wares or merchandise," it provides such slip, ticket or check comply with all of the following four conditions:

a. Bears upon its face a stated cash value.

b. Is redeemable only in cash.

c. Is redeemable only by the person issuing the same; and

d. Entitles the holder on demand and as a matter of right to have the same redeemed when presented in a sum aggregating twenty-five cents or over of redemption value.

This does not mean that the person issuing such slip, ticket or check may not redeem in less amounts if he so desires.

Slip, ticket or check which does not comply with all four of these conditions is prohibited and is unlawful. The form, or design, or color of the slip, ticket, or check otherwise is immaterial, so long as it complies with these requirements.

All Dealers Affected. The word "dealer" in the above quoted provision of the statute includes retail dealers, merchants as well as wholesale dealers.

The permitted slip, ticket or check must bear, written or printed upon its face, the amount of cash to be redeemed, and it is not a compliance with the law that the token shows upon its face the amount purchased merely with a statement that the redemption value is given per centage of the amount, leaving it to the purchaser to compute the redemption value for himself.

Slips, tickets or other tokens, redeemable in cash or merchandise, are not redeemable only in cash, and hence are clearly prohibited.

Redemption must be by the person issuing the slip, ticket or check. "The person, firm or corporation, to whom the token originates and who originally issues the same in connection with the sale of goods," must be the person to whom the token is presented for redemption. It is issued by the packer. It must be redeemed by the merchant.

May Redeem in Cash. A slip, ticket or check so redeemable, i. e., in cash as described above, by a manufacturer or dealer, and by him issued in connection with the sale of goods manufactured or packed by him is a lawful token and a merchant thereafter with a re-sale of the same in connection with the law, such goods does not violate the law.

Tokens issued under an arrangement that they will be redeemed by others than the manufacturer or dealer, by the same are prohibited and any person who shall "use, give, offer, issue, transfer, furnish or deliver" such token will be liable under the law. This is a merchant may not issue a slip, ticket or check redeemable by his bank or by another merchant or by a trading stamp concern. Hence, the issuance of such "tokens" is prohibited.

Permit Free Coupons. The statute does not apply to any stamp, token, coupon, or the like, not used, given, offered or issued, etc., in connection with the sale of any goods, wares or merchandise. Thus Motion picture rights to Charles A. Taylor's famous western melodrama, "Yosemite" have been acquired by Metro as a starring vehicle for its athletics star, Edith Storey. The author himself will adapt the play for the screen and therefore all the characteristic western action and incidents which have made this melodrama a success on the stage will be transferred to the screen.

This is the second stage play that Metro has secured recently for Edith Storey. Miss Storey is a famous delineator of western characters and is just completing her first picture of this type under the parrot trade mark, "Revenge," a screen adaptation of Edward Moffat's novel, "Hearts Steadfast."

DEAD MEN'S EFFECTS ARE PLACED ON SALE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Jan. 8.—Dead men's effects are sold at auction on the ship's deck by an old custom in the British navy. Prices out of all proportion to the value of goods are often realized for the man's heirs, especially if the late owner was popular with his shipmates. Purely personal belongings, such as letters and photographs, are first taken out to be forwarded to the deceased's relatives. Then, as soon as official sanction is obtained, the rest of the articles are taken to a convenient part of the ship and offered for sale. The master-at-arms acts as auctioneer. Bidders who have obtained the small articles from such an auction sometimes throw back their purchases for resale until as many Jackies as will be inclined have had a chance of contributing something towards the assistance of the dead man's next of kin. Thus the kit sales become the lower deck's way of taking up a charitable collection.

The kit of a deserter is similarly sold by auction, the proceeds going to the national treasury. But the outfit rarely fetches more than a few shillings, as many sailors regard the possession of articles formerly belonging to a deserter as undesirable, if not unlucky.

Sales of the Friendly Forest

XXVI.

Well, after Uncle Lucky had spent about a week at the Old Brier Patch he thought it was time for him to go home. So he called up his house on the telephone and ordered his automobile sent for him.

"Now, don't you worry about Billy Hunny," he said to Mrs. Bunny. "I'll take good care of him and send him home safely."

Then he fixed his goggles on and Billy Hunny cranked up the automobile and away they went. You see, Uncle Lucky had grown so fond of the little rabbit that he just had to take him home for a week's visit, anyway.

But they hadn't gone so very far, just a little ways, when the automobile ran into a load of hay. And oh, dear me! The hay all tumbled down on top of Billy Hunny and he was stuck. And you couldn't see a bit of the automobile. Wasn't that dreadful?

Well, I don't know what would have happened—they would have guessed it. The big, kind circus elephant hadn't come along just then. Well, sir, he put his trunk around that pile of hay and lifted it right off Billy Hunny and the little rabbit was free. And the farmer gave him a nickel for doing it. But he wouldn't take anything from Uncle Lucky, although he tried to give him a carrot cent.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Jan. 7.—On account of the cold weather that prevailed on Sunday, services at the M. E. church were abandoned.

A force of sorters commenced work at the Sedgwick warehouse on Monday, several crates having been received. It was feared that an entirely new boiler may have to be secured at the school house. Investigation shows that the damage done by the fire was not as great as first supposed.

Fern Pattequin of the town of Spring Valley has just received from the department of agriculture and home economics of the University of Wisconsin, an "achievement" pin.

Miss Pattequin was a member of the "Joy Workers Canning Club" of the village and canned three hundred and fifteen pounds of fruit and vegetables.

Several plows of the village arrived at the conclusion that it was not necessary to go to France or the other continents to learn the art of trench digging.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Jan. 8.—A wreck one mile east of the city delayed railroad traffic here yesterday and no trains arrived from the east. The milk train left at 8:35 a. m. and had gone about a mile when it struck a six foot snow bank in the cut near the Thomas Colback farm, from which it could not extricate itself. A large engine was sent from here to its assistance about an hour later to see if it could not pull it out. When nearing the cut the engine struck the drift that had been blown in again by the wind, and the engineer put on a little more speed. On account of flying snow it was impossible to see ahead and the engine was run into the rear passenger coach driving way to the trucks. The second coach was of steel and was not damaged, but the smoke and baggage car were telescoped and baggage car and passenger car were crushed and passengers and but two were slightly injured. Conductor Evans has a sprained wrist and Clair Barfoot has his head hurt. The two engines of the milk train were shoveled out and went east under their own power about four o'clock. A call for the wrecker was sent in and the track is clear this morning.

It was the second accident of a similar nature within less than twelve months. Last spring Frank Suttill was killed in the same place. In each accident the victim struck his head against low hanging pipes or ventilator shafts which are studded with heavy bolts. The first man died within a day. The second is paralyzed and unable to sleep. His condition is critical.

"When the capitol was built $7,500,000 was spent in its construction. Of that $1,700,000 was for engineering advice. As a result of conditions opposed to our safety rules, one workman is dead and another critically hurt. The cost to the taxpayers of the state will be $8000."

If it were a private concern with such conditions existing we should immediately force improvements. We cannot however, force the state to make them and cannot ever more than recommend the fifteen per cent penalty which contributory negligence on the part of the employer entitles the employee to.

Accident signs have already been erected in several of the worst places that he wanted to marry? The mine owner carried with him back to his office a sense of the little irony of life. A score of men would have liked to marry Mrs. Mallory. She had all the sophisticated graces of life and much of the natural charm of an unusually attractive personality. He had only to speak the word to win her, and his fancy had flown in pursuit of a little Puritan with no knowledge of the world.

In front of the Seattle & Kuskokwim Express the Scotsman stopped. A little man who had his back to him was bargaining for a team of huskies. The man turned, and Macdonald recognized him.

"Hello, Gid. Aren't you off your usual beat a bit?" he asked.

The little miner looked him over impudently. "Well—well! If it ain't the big mogul himself—and wantin' to know if I've got permission to travel off the reservation."

"I reckon you travel where you want to, Gid—same as I do."

"Maybeso. I shouldn't wonder if you'd find out quite soon enough what I'm doing here. You never can tell," the old man retorted with a manner that concealed volumes.

Those who were present remembered the words and in the light of what took place later thought them significant.

"Anyhow, it is quite a social event for Kuskokwim," Macdonald suggested with a smile of irony.

Without more words Holt turned back to his bargaining. The big Scotsman went on his way, remembered that he wanted to see the cashier of the bank which he controlled, and promptly forgot that old Gid existed.

The old man concluded his purchase and drove up to the hotel behind one of the best dog teams in Alaska.

Gideon asked a question of the porter.

"Second floor. That's his room up there," the man answered, pointing to a window.

"Oh, you, seven—eighteen—ninety-nine," the little miner shouted up.

Elliot appeared at the window. "Well, I'll be hanged! What are you doing here, Old-Timer?"

"Once I knew a man lived to be a grandpa minding his own business," grinned the little man. "Come down and I'll tell you all about it, boy."

In half a minute Gordon was beside him. After the first greetings the young man nodded toward the dog team.

"How did you persuade Tim Ryan to lend you his huskies?"

"Why don't you take a paper and keep up with the news, son? These huskies don't belong to Tim."

"Meaning that Mr. Gideon Holt is the owner?"

"You've done guessed it," admitted the miner complacently.

He had a right to be proud of the team. It was a famous one even in the North. It had run second for two years in the Alaska sweepstakes to Macdonald's great Siberian wolf-hounds. The leader, Butch, was the hero of a dozen races and a hundred savage fights.

"What in Halifax do you want with the team?" asked Elliot, surprised.

"The whole outfit must have cost a small fortune."

"Some dust," admitted Gideon proudly. He winked mysteriously at Gordon. "I got a use for this team, if anyone was to ask you."

"Haven't taken the government mail contract, have you?"

"Not so you could notice it. I'll tell you what I want with this team, as the old saying is," Holt lowered his voice and narrowed slyly his little beady eyes. "I'm going to put a camp in Colby Macdonald. That's what I aim to do with it."

"How?"

The miner beckoned Elliot closed and whispered in his ear.

CHAPTER XIX.

In the Dead of Night.

While Kuskokwim slept that night the wind shifted. It came roaring across the range and drove before it great scudding clouds heavily laden with sleepy snow. From dark till dawn the roar of the wind filled the night. Before morning heavy drifts had wiped out the roads and sheeted the town in virgin white unbroken by trails or furrows.

With the coming of daylight the tempest abated. Kuskokwim got into its working clothes and dug itself out from the heavy blanket of white that had tucked it in. By noon the business of the town was under way again. That which would have demoralized the activities of a Southern city made little difference to these Arctic Circle dwellers. Roads were cleared, paths shoveled, stores opened. Children in parkas and fur coats trooped to school and studied through the short afternoon by the aid of electric light.

Dusk fell early and with it came a scatter of more snow. Mrs. Selfridge gave a dinner-dance at the club that night and her guests came in furs of great variety and much value. The hostess outdid herself to make the affair the most elaborate of the season. Nobody in Kuskokwim of any social importance was omitted from the list of invited except Gordon Elliot. Even the grumpy old cashier of Macdonald's bank—an old bachelor who lived by himself in rooms behind those in which the banking was done—was persuaded to break his custom and appear in a rusty old dress suit of the vintage of '95.

The grizzled cashier—his name was Robert Milton—left the clubhouse early for his room. It was snowing, but the wind had died down. Contrary to his custom, he had taken two or three glasses of wine. His brain was excited so that he knew he could not sleep. He decided to read "Don Quixote" by the stove for an hour or two.

Arrived at the bank, he let himself into his rooms and locked the door. He stooped to open the draft of the stove when a sound stopped him halfway. The cashier stood rigid, still crouched, waiting for a repetition of the noise. It came once more—the low, dull rasping of a file.

Shivers ran down the spine of Milton and up the back of his head to the roots of his hair. Somebody was in the bank—at two o'clock in the morning—with tools for burglary. He was a scholarly old fellow, brought up in New England and cast out to the uttermost frontier by the malign tragedy of poverty. Adventure offered no appeal to him.

But though his knees trembled beneath him and the sickness of fear was gripping his heart, Robert Milton had in him the dynamic spark that makes a man. He tiptoed to his desk and with shaking fingers gripped the revolver that lay in a drawer.

The cashier braced himself for the plunge, then slowly trod across the room to the inner, locked door. The padded fingers of his left hand could scarce turn the key.

It seemed to him that the night was alive with the noise he made in turning the lock and opening the door. The hinges grated and the floor squeaked beneath the full of his foot as he stood at the threshold.

Two men were in front of the wire grating which protected the big safe that filled the alcove to the right. One held a file and the other a candle. Their blank, masked faces were turned toward Milton, and each of them covered him with a weapon.

"What are you doing here?" quavered the cashier.

"Drop that gun," came the low, sharp command from one of them.

Some old ancestral instinct in the bank cashier rose out of his panic to destroy him. He wanted to lie down quietly in a faint. But his mind asserted its mastery over the weakening body. In spite of his terror, of his flaccid will, he had to keep the faith. He was guardian of the bank funds. At all costs he must protect them.

His forearm came up with a jerk. Two shots rang out, almost together. The cashier sagged back against the wall and slowly slid to the floor.

The guests of Mrs. Selfridge danced well into the small hours. The California champagne stimulated a gaiety that was balm to her soul. She wanted her dinner-dance to be smart, to have the atmosphere she had found in the New York cabarets. If everybody talked at once, she felt they were having a good time. If nobody listened to anybody else, it proved that the affair was a screaming success.

Mrs. Wally was satisfied as she bade her guests good-by and saw them pass into the heavy snow that was again falling. They all assured her that there had not been so hilarious a party in Kuskokwim.

One old-timer, a trifle lit up by reason of too much hospitality, phrased his enjoyment a little awkwardly. "It's been great, Mrs. Selfridge. Nothing like it since the days of the open dance hall."

Mrs. Mallory hastily suppressed an internal smile and stepped into the falling. They all assured her that there had not been so hilarious a party in Kuskokwim.

"What else could one say?" Genevieve Mallory always preferred to tell the truth when it would do just as well. Now it did better, since it contributed to her own ironic sense of amusement. Macdonald had once told her that Mrs. Selfridge made him think of the saying, "Monkey sees, monkey does." The effervescent little woman had never had an original idea in her life.

Most of those who had been at the dance slept into. They were oblivious of the fact that the storm had quickened again into a howling gale. Nor did they know the two bits of news that were passing up and down the main street and being telephoned from house to house. One of the items was that the stage for Katma had failed to reach the roadhouse at Smith's Crossing. The second bit of news was local. For the first time since Robert Milton had been cashier the bank had failed to open on the dot.

Macdonald was no sluggard. It was his habit not to let the pleasure of the night before interfere with the business of the morning after. But in the darkness he overslept and let the town waken before him. He was roused by the sound of knocking on his door.

"Who is it?" he asked.

Dinner Stories

A lady recently selected a hat at a milliner's asked cautiously: "Is there anything about these feathers that might bring me into trouble with the Bird Protection society?"

"No, madam," said the milliner.

"But did they not belong to some bird?" persisted the lady.

"Well, madam," returned the milliner pleasantly, "those feathers are the feathers of a howl, and the howl you know, madam, seein' as 'ow fond he is of mice, is more of a cat than a bird."

So many accidents had happened in the mines that a number of miners determined to join the local ambulance corps. When one of their mates happened to cut his finger or sprain his wrist there was a general rush for the wounded man by the ambulance corps, and by the time they had finished with him he usually looked like a cross between an Egyptian mummy and a patient at a hospital.

All this, of course, was valuable practice, and after many months of hard work in the class an examination was held.

"Suppose one of your mates should be badly frostbitten, how would you treat the case?" asked the examiner.

"Why, rub him with a man who's had a touch of sunstroke. That'd bring 'em both around."

A captain, returning to camp at night with his family, was challenged by a slight inebriated sentry.

"Halt! Who's there?"

"Captain Smith and family."

"Captain Smith—advance to be recognized. Mrs. Smith and baby—mark time. The pup—at ease."

And then the corporal of the guard placed the sentry "at rest."

Mrs. E. A. Cornwell was called to Janesville on Thursday by the death of her mother, Mrs. Mary Cook. Mrs. Cornwell went to Janesville today to attend the funeral.

The following letter was received by the Help Male club in acknowledgment of a Christmas box sent by them to Lieutenants at Camp Custer:

I received your Christmas box, and wish to express to you the gratitude with which I received the contents. It came in the evening, when I was working late, and after looking it over a while we decided that there might be something that would need attention before we could use it.

The box was well investigated and found that it was well worth investigating. We immediately proceeded to have a genuine little party and wish to tell you that the realization of the box has brought to us and especially me, and made them more dear than ever.

Clubs such as yours can never know the true value of these remembrances until they are received. They keep them alive, make us feel that even though we are far away we are still present in your thoughts, and pass them on to others.

I am sure that you are all very kind and helpful and many of these little and seemingly unimportant activities are the means of far reaching results. All good thoughts and actions are responsible for the betterment of the world and the credit is entirely due to the one who begins the outward and upward movement. May the kindly thoughts and good deeds that you are giving to others.
